

Call for Applications : 2017-2018 CCA Postdoctoral Associates

écrit par Clémence Mesnier

The Center for Cultural Analysis at Rutgers University will be devoting his 2017-2018 annual research seminar to the Medical Humanities. They are looking for two postdoctoral scholars to join them for what promises to be an exciting year. The positions come with a $45,00 stipend, health insurance, a private office, and access to all Rutgers resources.

MEDICAL HUMANITIES

The Medical Humanities is an emerging field that explores the relationship between culture and society, on the one hand, and medical science and clinical practice, on the other. A growing body of scholarship in this area approaches the experience of embodiment, health, illness, and medical treatment as a question rather than a given.

For the 2017-18 CCA seminar, we plan to gather those who share our interest in exploring what becomes possible when the realms currently governed by “the medical” and “the humanities” are allowed to intersect and overlap: faculty and graduate fellows, medical professionals, artists, writers, and distinguished guests.

Topics of interest will include but are not limited to the history of disease, illness, health, and care; the visual culture of medicine; disability studies; medical narratives of all kinds, including scientific narratives; race, ethnicity, gender, and class in the study of health and illness; global health; and the classification and treatment of mental health.

The seminar will meet approximately once every two weeks for three hours on Wednesday afternoons over the course of the 2017-18 academic year. We will read and discuss scholarship related to the medical humanities, and members will circulate and present works-in-progress. In addition, distinguished guests will visit the seminar to discuss current projects and share insights and expertise.

APPLICATION DETAILS

In 2017-18, the Center for Cultural Analysis at Rutgers University will sponsor two external postdoctoral associates. Postdoctoral Associates will receive a $45,000 salary, health benefits, and a private office in the new Rutgers Academic Building on the College Avenue campus. During the course of the academic year, Postdoctoral Associates teach one undergraduate course in a relevant department within the School of Arts and Sciences, which is arranged through the CCA. Since the CCA Postdoctoral Associate position is considered a residential appointment, candidates must agree to establish residency within a forty mile radius of the New Brunswick campus during the 2017-18 academic year.

To apply, please visit <https://apply.interfolio.com/36344> and submit:

- 1) Cover letter
- 2) CV
- 3) Three confidential letters of recommendation
- 4) A 250-400 word abstract of your research project
- 5) A research statement (no more than 4 single-spaced pages total)
- 6) A detailed proposal for an advanced undergraduate course that you would like to teach (1-2 pages)

Applicants who have not yet completed the PhD must fulfill all degree requirements by August 1, 2017.

All materials must be uploaded to the Interfolio system by Jan. 9, 2017. Apply online at <https://apply.interfolio.com/36344>.
